[illegible] April [illegible]

[illegible] the farmers and the [illegible] have [illegible] Plenty of April [illegible] and sunshine has already [illegible] the [illegible] fields [illegible] growing [illegible] and the [illegible] various [illegible] sometimes vulgarly called [illegible] are rapidly [illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible] of the Circuit Court which was held here [illegible] But one jury trial [illegible] the [illegible] against defendant [illegible] Boise.

There was however an important law question submitted to Judge Stratton and taken by him under advisement. The State brought suit against this county for the amount of its taxes [illegible] some $4,000 or $5,000 and claimed judgment in gold or silver coin. The county pleaded a tender of greenbacks and the question submitted was the legality and sufficiency of the tender. The State was ably represented by Messrs Watson, of Roseburg, Prosecuting Attorney, and Mallory of Salem [illegible] and the decision of the Judge is looked for with great interest. It is generally thought the case will go to the Supreme Court of the State and finally the Supreme Court of the United States. Another feature of the question [illegible] greenbacks pay taxes [illegible] Justice Court a few days since, and was promptly [illegible]

Mr S. had tendered his taxes in greenbacks which were refused. The Sheriff [illegible] Mr S. [illegible] of our merchants Mr D., and served a garnishee notice on him [illegible] Pretty good, you say, for the Sheriff, but wait a bit, the laugh [illegible] Mr S. sues Mr D. for his [illegible] debt, and although the latter struggled hard to make his payment to the Sheriff a good defense, it was unavailing, and the plaintiff had judgment for the full amount.

On Wednesday morning of Court week, just as Court was opening, a telegram was handed to the Judge announcing that the day was to be observed [illegible] with suitable funeral ceremonies of the late President Lincoln and [illegible] the Prosecuting Attorney [illegible] Court adjourned until the following morning and at twelve o'clock all the bells of the place united in tolling, and an immense concourse of people assembled at the Courthouse and participated in suitable exercises for the sad occasion. Revs. Bond and [illegible] Judges Stratton and Risdon, Messrs [illegible] Chadwick, Kelsay Chairman, and others taking prominent part. To-morrow, in accordance with the Proclamation of Gov. Gibbs there will be a gathering at Pleasant Hill. Several persons of this place are expecting to go.

The Military Road Company are pressing their work forward with great energy, the Superintendent being now out on the line of the road with parties who propose taking contracts.

I notice a late number of the Dalles Mountaineer urges as the best mode of preventing the great diversion of travel to Owyhee and B[illegible], which is feared will follow the opening of the Red Bluff route, to open a direct land route from Dalles to Canyon City. Inasmuch as that route would intersect our road some [illegible] 80 miles north east from here, and some 2[illegible]0 miles from the Dalles, can the people of the Willamette valley fail to see at a glance the [illegible] the military phrase [illegible] this is a Military Road [illegible] importance of this route, and of its being speedily opened to the public.

Letter from Traveler

[illegible] April [illegible], 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

The heavy fog bank lifted from the bar before 11 o'clock, A. M., the time of our arrival at Astoria, and we could clearly see the [illegible] miles away. At one o'clock P. M. we crossed the bar through the south channel. The clear [illegible] line on each side contrasted sadly with our [illegible] There [illegible] up among the breakers the [illegible] of the ill fated Industry, a monument of the dangers of the bar and a warning to our Government to provide life boats and [illegible] shelters, and [illegible] and ropes and, above all, hardy tried seamen, [illegible] use them for the rescue of those ready to perish. All honor to the noble soldiers of the Fort at Cape Disappointment who saved all who were saved from the raft! They had served at the Point and had become familiar with the sea. They risked their own lives in a boat not fitted for the danger. Capt. Johnson, pilot, who went down with [illegible] says that he [illegible] distinctly hear the voices of [illegible] on the wreck, crying [illegible] "save us, for God's sake save us!" He saw the woman in the [illegible] top and saw Capt. Lewis [illegible] and distinguished it above the rest crying [illegible] Oh it was heart rending to see and hear these poor sufferers helpless [illegible] hanging between life and death, praying [illegible] their brother [illegible] to come and help them, and yet to have no response, but to see the Wright [illegible] back and leave them to their fate and thus [illegible] their death.

Had the Wright remained until morning [illegible] friends would have had a boat manned and a line [illegible] rigged with a line, and there were men ready to peril their lives among the breakers [illegible] the life buoy in order to attach a line to the wreck. They saw Capt. Lewis and the men [illegible] up and down the rigging, and knew that [illegible] had strength. The Industry was [illegible] was over into the south channel. Indeed [illegible] seemed very [illegible] the edge of the breakers. Will not every man do his duty [illegible] the Government [illegible] provide for [illegible] who risk [illegible] every week on this bar? [illegible] should ship and men both be lost [illegible] every one the latter can be saved? [illegible] this mighty river must shift a little, and [illegible] channel be somewhat changed annually [illegible] the main [illegible] the [illegible] The north channel has an [illegible] the point that the cape shuts off the wind. [illegible] the Industry was caught. She [illegible] stays [illegible] being too near the south side of the channel, [illegible] as she swung round after dropping [illegible] and broke the rudder [illegible] unmanageable, and the Captain [illegible] drift across the south channel. Thus she was lost. Had there been a tug [illegible] men would have been saved.

[illegible] DAY MORNING, MAY [illegible]

The National Debt

We have been [illegible] boasting [illegible] announced that the national debt amounts to over $3 000 000 000 [illegible] the figures furnished by Secretary Fessenden to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House, bringing matters down to a late date. Then the whole amount of [illegible] obligation outstanding, footed up at less than $2 280 000,000 of which less than $1 700 000 000 is bearing interest, the whole interest amounting to about $94 000 000 per annum. This is a statement in brief of the national finances from which there cannot be much variation at this time. The present amount of our debt is scarcely more than half the sum of the national debt of Great Britain, while the ultimate resources and remunerative power of the United States will make its prosperity and ability to extinguish this encumbrance a thing of easier accomplishment than with any other nation upon earth.

The great expense of the war may be counted as past. Our armies will soon in great part be disbanded, our navies either in part laid up or placed on the much less expensive footing required by piping times of peace. The great expense of war is not the mere maintenance of armies; it is the keeping them in the field, and supplied with munitions, repairing the incredible waste that attends campaigns, expending millions for extraordinary supplies, where the mere cost of subsistence is but a trifle. During the past year the Government has been, more than ever before, supported by taxation and imposts. The operation of the internal revenue system begins to produce results of a more certain character, and should peace actually follow the present hour, it will probably amply suffice for present necessities, and as soon as the peaceful order of things becomes permanently established, it will afford an overplus that could be immediately applied toward the extinguishment of the enormous debt secession has entailed upon us.

What we have to fear, is that the speculators and politicians will combine to get the Confederate debt into their own hands, and then by sophistical argument attempt to foist it upon the Nation. This is already mooted in our streets as an issue likely to arise, and that will, if successful, do much to reconcile the sections by its adoption; but it is to be hoped that this posthumous recognition of the Confederacy will be as strenuously opposed by the people as the Confederacy itself was in its palmiest days.

There is room for enormous fraud in this same matter. It is within the province of capital to combine to acquire the possession of these Confederate obligations for a judicious proportion of the proceeds to be distributed among the politicians by promises, and then for sophistry attempt to carry conviction where straightforward argument would utterly fail. The people owe it to themselves now to commence thoroughly the work of retrenchment and reform. It lays in their power to adopt and carry out a programme, or national policy, which will secure to our children immunity from onerous taxation, and to institute precedents that shall remain to be admired and followed by those who shall come after us.

The great question to follow the close of the war, must be: How shall we provide for the national debt? The questions connected with that subject will have power to make and break political parties, and will revive in the future such able discussions as arose of old over the settlement of bank and tariff. Our future is not clouded if the people can be depended on. No nation ever renewed the race with brighter prospects; none ever came out of a death struggle with greater wealth and power. The world stands ready to replenish our treasury, and the swarming millions of other lands are prepared to choose homes among us. Those who talk of leaving us are the ones who have sown the wind and reaped the whirlwind, and they are those we can best spare. Such will only leave their country for their country's good, while their places will be filled by better men.

State Items

It must be Lane County instead of Linn County, against which the State has commenced suit for the taxes of 1863, as the Albany Journal says all the dues of Linn County have been paid in gold.

The Journal publishes the affidavit of Jas. Elkins, County Clerk of Linn County, effectually disapproving statements of "J. O. M." in the Marysville Express, as to the manner in which jurors are selected, and as to exclusion of "Democrats" from trial cases. If the rest of the "Democrats" are as unreliable as "J. O. M.," they ought to be excluded under the rest of qualifications prescribed in the Statutes.

The citizens of Albany have been indulging in the construction of sidewalks, much to the benefit of travel about town.

The wagon road from Linn County to Deschutes river, is in progress of completion, and expected to be finished by July 1st. The trail is now open for stock, with no snow to stop travel. It is said that this road occupies the lowest pass yet discovered over the Cascade Mountains, and a revolution in travel to the eastern mines is anticipated from its speedy completion. The distance from Lebanon to the Des Chutes is called 100 miles.

The roads have so improved that the Cal. Stage Company, with the daily mail from Sacramento, have little difficulty in filling their contract. All winter they have succeeded, except in impossible cases, in bringing the mail bags through generally inside of the time allowed. It would be difficult to fill their place.

Victoria Items. The Legislative Assembly of Vancouver Island adopted the following resolution on Thursday, April [illegible]:

Resolved, That this House, taking into consideration the great calamity which has befallen the United States and the rest of the world in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, do now adjourn till to-morrow as a mark of respect to the memory of the great departed. [illegible] a nation connected by the nearest ties with our own, and glorying in the same origin, the same traditions and the same creed.

The Victoria papers were receiving telegraphic dispatches by way of New Westminster, to which place the telegraph line has been completed.

Several incendiary fires had occurred at Victoria without resulting in any serious loss, though several small buildings were consumed.

The California Steam Navigation Company have been examining the entrance of Fraser river to see if their steamships can run direct to New Westminster. The result is not known, but it is hardly probable they will go beyond Victoria. Three river steamers going from Victoria to New Westminster had run on reefs or sand heads within the last week, but got off with slight damage.

A Chinaman going up Fraser river with twenty-one pounds of opium was arrested and the opium taken from him. Another lot was being looked after.

The Government Wagon Road to Cariboo was to be constructed as fast as possible.

By Overland Telegraph.

DATES TO APRIL 29

General Military Order for Reducing Expenses.

San Francisco, May 1.

Washington [illegible] War Department [illegible] for reducing the expenses [illegible] That the [illegible] in the field and in garrison [illegible] Quartermaster [illegible] except what is required for immediate consumption, and the Commissary General of Subsistence is to discontinue [illegible] supplies, with what is on hand be required by the [illegible]. Fifth, that the Chief of Ordnance stop all purchases of arms, ammunition and materials therefor, and reduce the manufacture of arms [illegible] the Government as rapidly as [illegible] without injury to the service. Sixth, that the Chief of Engineers stop work on all field fortifications and other works except those for which specific appropriations have been made by Congress [illegible] that all soldiers in hospital who require no further treatment be honorably discharged from service with the immediate payment; all officers and enlisted men who have been prisoners of war and are now on furlough or on parole in camps, and that all recruits in the [illegible] except those for the regular army be honorably discharged. Seventh, that the Adjutant General of the Army will cause the immediate reduction [illegible] by commanders in the field and of [illegible] and [illegible] of their respective [illegible] with a view to their immediate reduction. Eighth, that the Quartermasters, Subsistence, Engineers, and Provost Marshal Generals of Departments will reduce the number of clerks and employees to that absolutely required for doing up the business of their respective departments, that the Surgeon General will make a similar reduction of surgeons and nurses attending in his bureau. Ninth, that the Chiefs of the respective bureaus will immediately cause returns to be made of all public property in their charge and a statement of the property in each, so that it may be sold soon after advertisement and publication without prejudice to the service. Tenth, that commanders of prisoners will have rolls of their names made out containing [illegible] and place of capture and the condition of all prisoners of war who shall take the oath of allegiance to the United States, to the end that such as are disposed to remain good loyal citizens of the United States and are proper objects of executive clemency be released upon the terms that the President shall deem fit and consistent with the public safety. By order of the Secretary of War.

(Signed) W. A. NICHOLS, A. A. G.

General Lee's Opinion.

New York, April 29. The Herald's correspondent recounts an interview he had with Gen. Lee. He called on him to obtain his political views and lay them before the public. On informing Gen. Lee of his object the latter said: "I am a paroled soldier," and added, had never been a politician, and knew but little of political leaders. "I am a soldier," he further said. He had opposed secession, but when his State went out he considered that it was his duty to go with it. When he accepted command under the rebel Government, he considered he was serving his State. He remarked that his surrender of the military, was of no political significance; that was not a surrender of the doctrine of State Rights. When the South surrenders all its forces and returns to the Union, then only will she surrender her favorite doctrine of secession. That will then be settled by military power. There is question of State sovereignty. He contends there exists a legitimate casus belli; the question was not the ordinance law, and the war is destined to settle therefore the war raised on this issue, and cannot be called treason. If the South is forced to submit to it, of course it can only be looked on as a triumph of the power over State Rights and forced annihilation, for the South has not been, and is not yet, prepared to beg for terms, but is ready to accept any honorable terms. As to slavery, they consider it dead, and the majority have been anxious to do away with it. He expressed an opinion that should an arbitrary, vindictive or revengeful policy be attempted, the end of the war is not yet.

Developments of the Conspiracy.

New York, April 28.—The Herald's Washington special says: The search after the assassin of President Lincoln and the would-be murderer of Secretary Seward has developed a well laid and deliberately matured plan of assassination, infamous rascality and arson, unparalleled in the annals of crime. The investigators have not reached a point where it is proper to disclose the extent and various ramifications of this murderous plot. Many unsuspected and unsuspecting parties are involved, and the evidence is complete to show that it was neither the freak of a maniac or the act of an individual, but a scheme concocted by the rebellion and relied upon by the rebels in the hour of desperate need as one of the means of success in their great treasonable enterprise.

The Tribune's special says the surgeons who held a post mortem on the body of Booth say that mortification of the leg had commenced. It was the opinion of the Surgeon General that he could not have lived many days more in any event.

Louisville, April 29.—Nine hundred rebels surrendered in Cumberland Gap yesterday and were paroled.

Private dispatches dated New York, April 30th, quote gold at 146.

California News.

San Francisco, April 30.—Eastern line not working.

[illegible] Benton, working in the Eureka Match Factory of Wm. H. Jessup & Co., corner of Market and Fifth streets, fell from the wave landing to the second floor, at seven minutes past six last evening, a distance of 12 feet, striking his head on the edge of a heavy plank. He survived the accident but three hours.

Orders were received on Friday for the payment of the bounties due to Company A, 1st Cal. Infantry C. V., recently recruited at Marysville by Capt. Randall, and the money was paid by Capt. [illegible] yesterday. The Company leaves for Humboldt Bay on the new steamer Del Norte, to-morrow.

Michael Pendergast was instantly killed by the caving of a bank at a deep cut on Broadway yesterday.

[illegible] arrivals.

San Francisco, May 1.—Barney Olwell, the murderer of James Cowan, was arraigned this morning for sentence. Judge Pratt, in presence of prisoner and prosecuting attorney, inquired of Mr. Bates if he desired, on behalf of the prisoner, to move for a new trial, and stated to him if such motion were interposed the inclination of the Court was to grant it; that such inclination arose from the conviction that there was an error committed by the Court during the trial in stating that under the Criminal Practice Act of the State it was improper to comment on the trial of an [illegible] for an alleged offense. Inquiry as to the sanity of the accused was made, and for that reason he thought if a new trial was asked for it should be granted. The counsel for prisoner, however, declined to move for a new trial. The prisoner was then sentenced to be hung on Wednesday, June 28th. He betrayed no emotion. Subsequently his counsel, Judge Bates, gave notice of his intention to appeal to the Supreme Court to reverse the judgment, for the reason that defendant was denied the right under the plea of not guilty to give in evidence matter of fact tending to establish his defense, and to direct that the said defendant be discharged from custody, as it is necessary he should be held and twice put in jeopardy by a new trial.

General McDowell has received a telegram from Washington directing him to occupy for military purposes the block known as Custom House lot, [illegible] by Washington, Jackson, Sansome and Battery streets. All the tenants have been notified to vacate on or before the 9th inst.

Michael Holmes, arrested a few days since charged with using treasonable language, in saying that Lincoln and all of his kind should have been killed long ago, was to-day turned over to the military authorities for trial.

The County Treasurer's office of Solano county was entered by a burglar last night and robbed of $1,6[illegible].

The store of J. P. Raymond & Co., on Clay street, was entered last night by burglars and robbed of twenty barrels of flour. Ingress was effected by cutting a hole through the floor of the building, which set on piles. The rascals probably took away their plunder in boats. During the night the store of John McKee was also entered by burglars, who made an unsuccessful attempt to blow open the safe.

The barque Prosetta from Melbourne has been libelled in the U. S. High Court by thirty-seven of her passengers for breach of passenger contract, supplying them with bad food and inferior accommodations on their late voyage. They claim $1000 damages each.

[illegible] The [illegible] Silver Mining Company [illegible] declared a dividend of $70 per share. The Yellow Jacket [illegible] $1 [illegible]. The Spring Valley Water Co. [illegible] half price on their capital [illegible] market [illegible]. Legal tenders [illegible].

Flour [illegible] have materially [illegible] at quotations [illegible] $18 [illegible]. New [illegible] at three dollars per 100 pounds [illegible] 100 or 120 [illegible]. Oats are also full [illegible].

From New Westminster.

New Westminster, April [illegible]. The steamer [illegible] arrived from Yale [illegible] bringing a number of passengers and an Express [illegible]. The weather was mild and [illegible] travelling very good all the way. The trip from Williams Lake to this place was made in eight days. The steamer Enterprise is expected to commence her regular trips [illegible] connecting with the [illegible] Cariboo. The weather continues fine.

Important Action of Congress Relative to Mining Titles. Congress lately passed a bill providing for United States Courts in Nevada, after [illegible] incorporating in the same the following important clause:

"Be it further enacted, That no possessory action [illegible] in the courts of the United States for the recovery of any mining title, or for damages to any such title, shall be affected by the fact that the paramount title to the land in which such mines lie is in the United States, but each case shall be adjudged by the law of possession."

The most careful legislation is necessary with regard to mining interests. The recognition by Congress of the validity of title by possession will do something to satisfy the capitalist willing to invest, but at the best possessory titles will be subject to much question, and productive of lawsuits.

[illegible]

The First of May.—The first day of May [illegible] spring [illegible] President [illegible] accompanied [illegible] the Senate [illegible] Chancellor Livingston [illegible] United States.

An Ex-Steamboat Route.—[illegible] with, and experienced in business [illegible] yesterday [illegible] from the [illegible] up the Columbia, [illegible] safely from San Francisco [illegible] Portland [illegible] his wagon [illegible] the Red Bluff [illegible] the toll-bridge [illegible] the Red Bluff [illegible] of his operations [illegible] built by Portland mechanics [illegible] get around [illegible] from the train which left the head of navigation [illegible] Sacramento, nearly two [illegible] here to meet him.

Departure of Another Old Resident.—James M. Gil[illegible] and family, of this city, take their departure for the [illegible] this evening, by the steamer Oregon, intending to [illegible] in Massachusetts and other parts of New England for a few months. [illegible] a "Forty-Niner," and [illegible] of the original [illegible] men of the Pacific [illegible] arrived in the [illegible] which was brought around Cape [illegible] the Sacramento river, [illegible] present Capital of California [illegible] making the first [illegible] the coast. Since the early days of California [illegible] been a resident of Oregon, and is still identified with the growth and prosperity of the State. [illegible] the introduction of some [illegible] the locomotive kind [illegible]

A Pleasant Meeting.—[illegible] into one of our [illegible] has had quite improved [illegible] operating the [illegible] the Museum, [illegible] gentlemen and [illegible] the scene which [illegible] taken to [illegible] of a kindred, we were [illegible] A friend whom we had not [illegible] that we had grown up [illegible] to picture, [illegible] still, [illegible] picture out of [illegible] where we are. [illegible] on the Atlantic side [illegible] and all who have Father, Mother, Brother, Sister [illegible] East [illegible] them a carte de visite. [illegible]

Wagons for the Mining Trade.—A scene occurred in the streets of our city yesterday which is worth recording. Messrs. Hay & Wallace shipped a number of very large wagons for the mining freight trade [illegible] they on Front street [illegible] making a very [illegible] appearance, and speaking [illegible] in favor of [illegible] give employment to twenty-five men [illegible] branches of wagon-making, and besides their establishment there are other places [illegible] established. The same firm are just finishing up eight passenger coaches [illegible] stage line, that [illegible] be a credit to the city of Portland.

The Unfortunate Family.—We are requested by an acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Marks and [illegible] daughter [illegible] who were so unfortunately lost by the wreck of [illegible] Industry, to state that they were [illegible] from [illegible] South America, where Mrs. M. had kept a hotel during the temporary absence of her husband [illegible] the mines of Idaho. Matilda was born in Boston, in the year 1853 or '54, which city the family [illegible] left for South America. The only relatives known [illegible] live in Boston, and the Massachusetts journals are requested to publish this, in order that they may know [illegible] were among the number lost by the [illegible] on Thursday, March [illegible] inst., when entering the [illegible] river, from San Francisco.

Commercial.—The small amount of produce now on hand for export is the cause of very irregular departures [illegible] the packets from Oregon. The schooner [illegible] loading lumber for San Francisco at Westport, the [illegible] leaves [illegible] to-day to load lumber at [illegible] Point, for the same destination. The three vessels [illegible] the river bound out, will carry [illegible] By files of Honolulu papers received on Saturday, [illegible] the arrival [illegible] William [illegible] 13 days from San Francisco. A private letter from the same port, [illegible] for Portland soon (25th March), and we may now begin to look for her arrival here.

Gone, Gone, Gone.—That effort of ours to express a friendly farewell to an old [illegible] seemed to affect him very sensibly. We see that [illegible] for certainly one of the [illegible] the elder [illegible] was performed when he transferred a [illegible] of [illegible] cigars from his shelves, where they will not be missed, and our shelf, where its contents will prove so interesting, and be better appreciated than [illegible] article. We don't want all our friends to [illegible] but they are welcome to do so [illegible] if they will [illegible] We can but repeat our hopes that fate [illegible] may waft him from us [illegible] bring him back.

Bad Boys.—Mr. [illegible] M. [illegible] requested us to state that a set of bad boys, between the ages of twelve and fifteen years, are in the habit of stealing [illegible] along the river, articles of provisions and clothing [illegible] selling them for what they can get. [illegible] things in his possession which [illegible] stealing [illegible] disguise it from the [illegible] The matter [illegible]

The Dalles.—Many people of late have wondered at the extreme [illegible] of the [illegible] the backwardness of the season [illegible] The Sacramento [illegible] have [illegible] snow which [illegible] the Coast Range of mountains, [illegible] their winter [illegible]

Crooked River.—We learn from [illegible] that a large prospecting party was fitting out [illegible] expedition to Crooked River [illegible] and there was every [illegible] that they would be successful [illegible] in that direction [illegible]

The Exhibition Last Night.—The [illegible] evening by Messrs. [illegible] Theater, were [illegible] but they failed to [illegible] as was expected from [illegible] entire new change [illegible] readily recognized.

A Fine Vehicle.—Wells, Fargo & Co. have [illegible] imported [illegible] from San Francisco [illegible] first appearance on the streets yesterday [illegible] with four wheels [illegible] of bearing [illegible] $150.

May Day Festival.—The scholars of the [illegible] School [illegible] themselves [illegible] Their little hearts bounded with joy [illegible] with such gratification that they spoke of [illegible] The school [illegible] grew lively with sounds.

Large Hams.—Mr. [illegible] of the Eagle [illegible] exhibited to us a number of [illegible] large [illegible] production weighing from [illegible] pounds [illegible] very handsomely [illegible] without any damage [illegible] They were put up [illegible]

Kohler & Hausmann.—[illegible] this morning [illegible] of a general [illegible] refinement.

An Insane Woman.—A woman [illegible] House, last evening [illegible] wanders through the [illegible]

Rising Rapidly.—[illegible] melt the snow [illegible] rising very rapidly [illegible] two feet [illegible] evening, as the weather [illegible]

County Court.—The May term of the County [illegible] for Multnomah, Judge [illegible] Court House in this city yesterday [illegible] docketed for trial, and [illegible] character.

Sherman's Grand March—Kilpatrick's part in it.

[Correspondence of the New York Tribune.]

Wilmington [illegible] March 14th.—The cavalry force of General Sherman under the command of Brevet Major General Kilpatrick, constituting the left flank [illegible] of the army [illegible] Little Ogeechee [illegible] Savannah on the [illegible] January [illegible] distant [illegible] 29th. Here there was a detention of four days [illegible] February Kilpatrick's cavalry [illegible] river and camped in South Carolina. On the 4th they moved to [illegible] twenty three miles and encamped. The entire country along the line of march was laid waste. The fences burned, all houses barns, ginning mills, cotton factories, and everything inflammable destroyed. The country had already been deserted except by the blacks whose dwellings were respected. These simple people said "Massa told us when de Yankees come on dis udder side de ribber the world was comin' to an end, but we's mighty glad to see you," and no words could express the joy they manifested. The negroes showed where their massa's money [illegible] all kinds hidden away in the swamps.

A TORPEDO.

The wholesale destruction of property on the [illegible] was caused by the bursting of a torpedo which had been planted near a well where the boys went to get water, killing three of the First Alabama Cavalry. Their deliberate attempt at murder greatly incensed the troops, and there was no attempt to restrain them.

INCIDENTS OF WARFARE.

On the 8th their march was through a district of country the richest seen since they left Huntsville (Ala.). On the [illegible] they marched to [illegible] (Ala.) and on the 9th began tearing up the railroad at Blackwell. This place was full of women and children refugees. Regardless of all this General Wheeler attacked the cavalry as they entered the town, holding his fire until our advance had actually got in among the women and children. The country still improved; the houses and plantations bearing princely wealth but all deserted by their owners who had mostly [illegible] Augusta, taking with them their most valuable household furniture, finest stock and also the serviceable negroes. Immense amounts of forage and provisions were however left in the country; what was not used was destroyed.

The cavalry pursued a parallel line with that of the infantry, marching at a distance of from twenty to thirty miles.

AN ENGAGEMENT.

On the 8th the march brought them to Williston, the Third Brigade, commanded by Colonel Spencer, in advance. The advance of the brigade was composed of two squadrons of the First Alabama Cavalry, skirmishing the whole distance from Blackwell, about ten miles. Just as the brigade was going into camp at Williston the rebel cavalry of Wheeler, under General Hagan attacked our pickets. In a short time the remainder of the regiment was also ordered out and they failed to dislodge the enemy, who was protected on a hill with a pond on the right and a swamp on the left. Colonel Spencer himself moved out with the Fifth Kentucky Cavalry and one section of the Tenth Michigan Battery. Previous to the Colonel's arrival, however, on the ground, Major Cramer, commanding the First Alabama Cavalry, ordered Major Tramel with two squadrons to move to the extreme right and rear. The enemy noticing this movement, retreated and retired to another hill protected by a dense wood and the same pond on the right. Major Cramer advanced to within three hundred yards where he awaited the arrival of Colonel Spencer with reinforcements. The rebels seeing the reinforcements retired to the edge of the woods forming a double line of battle, and awaited an attack. Col. Spencer immediately formed the First Alabama on the right, the Fifth Kentucky commanded by Major Cheek on the left [illegible] and Stetson's artillery in the center and immediately sounded the advance. The two regiments moved forward probably a hundred yards when their advance was checked by a destructive fire from the enemy. Colonel Spencer moved to the front, gave the yell "Forward!" and at them they went. The enemy broke and fled. For seven miles their retreat was a perfect rout, the ground covered with their killed and wounded, and knapsacks, [illegible] rifles, and also—in fact all the paraphernalia of war scattered in their line of retreat.

THE RESULT.

The result of the fight was to the rebels the loss of seventeen dead left on the field, fourteen or fifteen badly wounded, left in houses. We captured five battle flags of Colonel Hagan's brigade, his own among the number. The next day [illegible] Johnson's turnout [illegible] Colonel Hagan issued [illegible] field rifles to replace those thrown away the day before. Our loss was five killed and nineteen wounded. The next morning Colonel Spencer was ordered to place his brigade in line when General Kilpatrick and staff complimented officers and men for their gallant conduct on the previous day.

A SHARP ENCOUNTER.

On the 9th Gen. Kilpatrick moved [illegible] and camped in a county destitute of water. On the 10th moved to [illegible] the whole division going into camp in line of battle, building stockades in front [illegible] the flanks and in the rear. [illegible] Atkins commanding the Second Brigade [illegible] moved on Aiken. This was the scene of a sharp encounter with Gen. Wheeler's force, who, smarting under his Williston defeat was determined to retrieve his reputation and partially succeeded. [illegible] Atkins moved out on the road to Aiken, leaving for his support in the [illegible] Colonel [illegible] commanding the First Brigade on the left [illegible] Spencer of the Third Brigade on the right with the dismounted men under command of Colonel Way to the stockades, in advance. After moving some three miles Gen. Atkins was compelled to retire, being attacked in front and on both flanks. The large force [illegible] General Wheeler brought into action partially [illegible] numbers enabled him to attack on all sides at once [illegible] Kilpatrick's [illegible] Atkins [illegible] could not whip them [illegible] Kilpatrick [illegible] drawing in his barricade until the whole line was [illegible] Wheeler [illegible] left [illegible] the First Brigade [illegible] Alabama [illegible] the enemy [illegible] Atkins [illegible] Kilpatrick [illegible] other [illegible]

[illegible]

The [illegible] the army [illegible] After holding the [illegible]

[illegible] Wheeler [illegible] Yankee Vandal [illegible] their arms.

[illegible]

General Kilpatrick [illegible] Wheeler [illegible] hanged and the cavalry pursued their line of march upon the left flank of the infantry until the 10th when they went into camp at [illegible]. Here General Kilpatrick and General Wheeler [illegible] flag of truce [illegible] Kilpatrick [illegible] General Wheeler. There were [illegible] other.

NO KINGHAM.

From Lancaster the cavalry force moved on the left flank of the infantry until March 10th when they [illegible] Rockingham, N. C., where the advance had a fight for the first time with Wade Hampton [illegible] all the way from Columbia but had not been seen until now.

ENTERING NORTH CAROLINA.

As soon as the troops passed the borders of North Carolina there was an immediate change in the treatment of the citizens. No violence or strain [illegible] necessary [illegible] it was taken for granted [illegible] that they were now among a different people [illegible] property was arrested. Nothing was taken but what was needed for subsistence [illegible] people remained generally at home and manifested little fear of the army. Expressions of loyalty were very common [illegible] Old men with gray beards would frequently come out and tell how their fathers fought for freedom in the Revolutionary war, and they would do nothing to dishonor the flag under which they bled and died. On the [illegible] rebel cavalry were driven into Hampton, quite a number of them wounded [illegible] several had been killed. General Kilpatrick placed [illegible] awaiting an attack, which [illegible] twenty nine miles from Fayetteville, arriving on the vicinity of the 9th. General Butler's rear [illegible] General Hampton [illegible] Wheeler's forces together with Butler's [illegible] Young's brigade [illegible] It was [illegible] that we had got to get out [illegible] the Third Brigade [illegible] Spencer [illegible] together with the dismounted brigade commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Way. Their advance was very hot [illegible] torrents, and we went into camp [illegible] General Kilpatrick with his own headquarters accompanied the Third Brigade. Being [illegible] over a swamp [illegible] in all directions in a falling rain, the cavalry lost its way, and in the darkness went into camp between Hampton and Wheeler, whose forces had preceded them, the one being on the right and the other on the left. They had extinguished their fires and in anticipation of our coming remained in their saddles all night, ready and ready [illegible] without firing a gun [illegible]

GENERAL HAMPTON'S ATTACK.

After the [illegible] camp General Hampton [illegible] his plan of attack which was as follows: General Wheeler was to have the right and right center, General Young was to have the left center and General Butler the left. Their line [illegible] In this [illegible] hundred yards [illegible] camp [illegible] Wade Hampton [illegible] Kilpatrick [illegible] Wheeler [illegible] Alabamians [illegible] the Third [illegible] Kilpatrick [illegible] Wheeler [illegible] the earliest [illegible]
